During the remainder of the day but few sought the Vatican. Then came the night bulletin, and far larger crowds than had gathered during the day wandered to the Vatican in the cool of the evening. The Swiss guards had received instructions only to admit a small portion of the inquirers prior to the printing of the bulletin, and even this retiried number almost filled the court of the Vatican, while many waited in suspense on the steps of St. Peter's.

Once to-day the doctors succeeded in overcoming Poope Leo's from will. He had firmly decided to receive three cardinals. After this morning's operation he requested the doctors to leave the room, saying he wished to see the cardinals. The doctors gently, but firmly, protested, declaring that he was still too weak. "But I shall not be fatigued, as I feel much better this morning," argued the Poope, but the doctors insisted, urging that it was for his own good, and Pope Leo yfelded, although expressing the longe that he might see some of the cardinals later.

ROME, July 10.—The Pope's marvelous vitality still permits him to maintain his struggle against death, although a portion of the night was passed in sleepless waitins. He greeted his dectors this morning with hopeful expressions. It was decided to perform another operation, which was executed by Dr. Mazzoni, assisted by Dr. Lapponi. decided to perform another which was executed by Dr. Mazzoni, assisted by Dr. Lapponi. The patient was visibly relieved and soon after a rest say in his arm chair and read his faworite Latin poet. Horace. The usual light nourishment was taken at noon and the Pope then lay down for a long rest.

Although there is intense public anxiefy, the neighborhood of the Valtean and St. Peters is comparatively quiet.

The Pope rose at 6 o'clock this morning. He said he thought the air of his room was somewhat vitlated and awanted it changed. An attendant, Pio Centra, after having been authorized to do so by Dr. Lapponi, opened the windows of the whole apartment, including that of the sick room, the Pontiff having previously the Pontiff having previousis sick room, the Pontiff having previously been carefully covered with extra blank-ets. After remaining open for a short time the windows were closed, with the exception of the window of the sick room. Dr. Lapponi decided that the balmy, fresh air could only do the patient good. The Pope prayed for half an hour, and then had breakfast, partaking of the yelk of an egg, beaten up with sugar, in bot coffee and a light biscuit. The 2 will then attended to his tollet, but he did not have. He then received his private sec-

the Pontiff referred to several different matters, recalling exactly the most minute details and remembering facts, figures and dates with marvelous promptness, and all this to the accompaniment of snuff taking.

ANOTHER OPERATION.

The doctors visit and operation followed. The doctors found the condition of the Pope not much changed. His temperature was a little above 30 degrees centificated, and his pulse was oscilltting be-grade, and his pulse was oscillating between S and 80. The Pointiff questioned the doctors about his condition, saying: "Do not deceive me, doctors, nothing More can affect me."

He asked if the regathering of the serum in the pleural cavity means that the disasse is growing seriously worse, and the fectors fenced, saying that it was one if the phases which generally reoccurs several times during an attack.

"Then," said the patient, "a new opertion is necessary?"

During the examination of the patient the doctors, after a thorough sounding, found that a pulmonary sound had reappeared in the obtuse zone, except in the area limited to the region where the puncture was made for the extraction of the liquid, which is on a line drawn from the nipple of the right breast, under the arm to the spinal column, the obtuse sound thus being between the sixth and eighth ribs. With his head against the ribs, Dr. Lapponi heard a murmur in the vesicular region. The murmur was confused with pleuric rumblings, together with gurglings as if of a small to middle sized bubbles.

Bulletin Issued.

"The august patient passed the first of rart of the night fairly peacefully, but afterwards the difficulty in his breathing became major marked, coupled with discomfort and an ficrease of the feeling of oppression. The pulse is small and weak, at the rate of 92. Apyrexia was complete and there was a little diuresis. A flow of endopleuritic matter being observed, a second operation was decided anon and immediately performed by Dr. Mazzoni. About a thousand grammes of bloody serum was extracted. The Pontiff por the second operation very well, and in consequence of it both the respiration and the power of the heart at once improved.

"MAZZONI.

"MAZZONI."

Dr. Mazzoni's operation to-day was almost identical with that of Tuesday afterneon. The patient lay on his couch with his side exposed. READ HORACE.

After the operation the Pope felt so relieved that he insisted on getting up, and took several steps toward his armichair and seated himself for a few minities. He then arose, and going to the book-shelves, where he keeps his favorite authors, took down Horace's Ars Poetica, returned to the armichair and began reading, holding one leg over the other. He seemed to feel no ill effects from the operation; on the contrary, he appeared to have derived benefit from it. Later in the day the Pope had junch and then took a long rest. At 2:15 e'clock he was still enjoying a restful repose, and showing no ill effects from the operation. The neighborhood of the Vatican was tranquil.

Some of the cars were run again yesterday with guards, and on some of the streets sentinels were put out for the first time in several days. Seventeenth Street and Venable Street, where the disorder began to break out again were patrolled, and the result is that there was no trouble of any sort.

Professor Hofsim Astounded at the Pope's Versatility of Mind.

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, July 10.—Professor Rossini graphically described the Pope's condition and surroundings to the Associated Press correspondent:

"It might have been expected," he said, with exhausted body and spirit, and ready to enter eternity. But on the contrary, when I approached the bedside, I immediately saw that I had bear desired. In spite of all I had heard concerning his marvelous vitality, I was amazed to find a man of such great age, after so dangerous antillness, exhibiting such versatility of mind and such power of mental concentration. As I approached the bed he pressed my hand with a slight effort, and looked at me intently with his bright, black, expressive eyes. He wore a calm, dignified smile, and began asking me a number of questions. It seemed almost incomprehensible that this was a man on the verge of death. Every power of will and intellect remained intact, showing complete consciousess of ego. Imagine an invalid intely-four years of age, anxious to make acquaintance of his new consulting doctor, asking suggestive questions and testing his opinion of clinical science. That any man should be able to make such a prompt, decided effort of the will is certainly astonishing.

"The Pope asked me if I had read cer-Tried to Wreck a Car.

So far as is known the most serious happening in Richmond was the attempt to wreck a car in the West End. Car No. 21, in charge of Motorman Fletcher had just left the Reservoir and was making the loop on its way into Main Street, when it ran into an obstruction. A heavy plees of seantling had been placed across the track. The car, which was nearly filled with people, Jumped over it and stayed on the track, but got a hole knocked in its bottom. There were a few stones thrown here and there throughout the city, but without serious results. The River View line was rehabilitated and some soldiers were sent out in that direction. Comparative quiet prevailed. Seven Pines, the wires on which were fixed early in the day, was run without any special incident.

One of the interesting happenings in the city yesterday was the discharge of Geo.

escape when he was shot and that the first firing was in the air.

The Strike.

No particular developments, outside of the return of a striker to work and the suggestion that another and possibly more are anxious to follow suit, have come to enliven things, so far as the relations between the two sides in the present controversy are concerned.

It is confidently asserted by the union men that they are in the ascendency, and that it is merely a question of time when the company will lay down its arms and acknowledge its defeat. Such is the belief of Mr. Orr, according to his own statement. He says that the men are hanging together in a remarkable manner, and that he is in a position to know that the reports to the effect that a number of them are anxious to return to work are altogether incorrect. The traffic on the cars is insignificant, he says, and the company is clearly in a bad way. It has been getting the worst of it for the past two weeks, and before icng will realize what the public have already realized, that it has lost its fight. President Griggs is also of the belief that the union has the company on the run. The strike, he declares, will never be called off unless the men get what they want. If the company wants to end it, it is in a position to do so: If it wants to fight, the men are ready to fight.

Quite a number of the strikers went on a plenie to Beach Park yesterday. Last night a meeting was held, as usual, and there were several interesting matters. A proposition was made hy somebody present that the union, with a view to getting the other side as well as its own, select two of its members for a discussion of the relative merits of the contentions of either side—one man to take the part of the company and the other, of the union. The men refused to entertain any such proposition, which, some of then declared, savored of Gulgonism, and the like. The question of organizing a company to run a regular line of busses here is attracting considerable attention. Money from the national has not yet b the eventual right of veto which the Italian government might exercise at the mext conclave.

Three Catholic powers—Spain, France and Austria—enjoy this privilege, termed the "Right of Exclusion," which entitles them to veto the election of a candidate who is not a persona grata to their governments. Italy claims the right as the heir of the kingdom of the two Sicilies, which enjoyed the right, but Italy did not exercise if in the last conclave, and may perhaps find it difficult to do so now, as no Italian cardinal, even among those who are most conciliatory, would undertake to represent united—Italy, which is considered by the Church to have usurped the temporary sovereignty of the papacy. Besides, Italy's policy consists in considering the papacy to be merely a spiritual power, which, enjoying under Italian law complete liberty and independence, can without political intervention exercise its ministry in Rome, the capital of the kingdom.

The Italian government follows the fluctuations of the Pope's consultation, Dr. Rossini saw the premier Zanardelli is kept advised of every change. Immediately after yesterday's consultation, Dr. Rossini saw the premier and made a statement to him regarding the condition of the Pope. working soon.

with the state in which its finds itself at this juncture. Prominent officials declare that it has things all its own way in the main. There is still some disorder here and there, but on the whole it is coping well with the conditions.

Superintendent Buchanan said last alght that he had taken in about twenty-five or thirty new regular men during the day. Two of three are old hands who have worked for the company, but who left it before the strike occurred. One of them is a striker, he said, a motorman named Brauer, Mr. Buchanan said things were in good shape generally and that the company was progressing well in the work of getting the system in thorough working order again.

Winn Dischärged.

Alt Se'clock before 'Squire Jas. T. Lowis, slitting in the County Court room, began the trial of George C. Winn, the striker, charged with shooting from ambush in the West End, and wounding Sergeant Easley. About three hours' work was necessary to complete this case.

The Commonwealth introduced a number of witnesses, who testified as to the arrest of the prisoner, certain remarks be uttered when he was being taken to fall and other matters, and it was also submitted as evidence that the bullet wound was inflicted by a bullet the size of the cartridges found in the pocket of Mr. Winn when he was apprehended. The case of the Commonwealth, however, was exceedingly weak, and not a scintillar of damaging evidence was introduced.

On his side Winn proved a clear allbi. He had a vertiable cloud of witnesses, and his case was so strong that many of them were not introduced at all. It was agreed by the counsel for both sides that according to the testimony adduced from both sides, the shooting occurred between 102 and 1035 on the evening of June 25th. The defense thereupon proceeded, through a number of excellent witnesses, that between 10 and 11 o'clock on the same night Winn was at the Eureka Club on West Broad Street attending a banquet.

In view of these facts the Commonwealth's attorney asked that the case be dismissed, and this was promptly done by "Squire Lewis. A ripple of appliause ran around when the decision of the court was announced, but "Squire Lewis rapped thrice with his little hammer and brought things to order in double quick time. In the absence of the complainant the warrant charging Winn when it was decided that to do so they would have to swear out a special new warrant.

The witness did not answer directly, declaring that it depended upon circumstances, and that if Mr. Farley was going away from town soon, as is likely, this threat, of course, had no further terrors for him.

Just about this time a man seated near the witness began to shake his head violently, Several persons within the bar noticed it and Mr. McGuire, counsel for the company, at once arose and made vigorous objections. Excitement ran pretty high yesterday afternoon at the north end of the Seventeenth-Street line, where that street runs alongside the Chesapeake and Ohio shops. A conductor for the Street-Car Company states that when he went up there about 4:39 on a regular run, a man came out of the shop and cursed him, called him every possible name under heaven. Other men stood around and cheered him on. The street-car man says he tried to get the time-keeper to tell him the odending man's name, but he would not do so. Seeing that he could not get redress in that way, the conductor went back to his car and was about to ring ahead, when the man came out again and was, if possible, more vile in his abuse than before. He stood it as long as he could, jumped from the car, drew his pistol and knife and started for one offender in genuine earnest. The fellow ran with all his might and hid.

MANY DEATHS FROM HEAT

Thirty-six Was Number in and Around New York.

(By Associated Press.) NEWYORK, July 10.—Thirty-six death and eighty-three prostrations in and round New York and Brooklyn tell the story of to-day's heat. It was the hotest July 10 in the history of the local weather bureau, the highest previous record being 91 degrees, recorded July 10th, 1880. The early threat of a temperature that would break all records, however, was not fulfilled. Thursday's record of it degrees at 4 o'clock, the high weather mark of the year, was reached to-day at twenty minutes past 1, without signs of relief. But by 2 o'clock the temperaat twenty minutes past 1, without signs of relief. But by 2 o'clock the temperature had fallen two degrees, where it remained during the next two hours. At 8 o'clock to-night the temperature had fallen to 83 degrees, six degrees lower that at the same hour Thursday.

During the two or three hours about noon, when the heat was the most intense, the wind averaged about nine miles an hour. About 5 o'clock the watchers at the weather bureau discovered that a thunderstorm was in progress in the southeast. Meanwhile the wind shifted and increased in velocity to 32 miles an hour at 6 o'clock. The storm, which scarcely touched the city, had given the desired relief. Between 5 and 7 o'clock the temperature fell several degrees. The city had been sweltering solong in the hot wave, however, that it was hours before the benefits began to reach the tensements. In the streets, where the cool process was more immediate, men, women and children crowded in the doorways and walks to recover from the wearing effects of the day. As on the night before, many slept on the park benches, and where the police would permit, on the grass.

Daniel Lewis, a heat-crazed negro, attacked with a club two girls who werearrying a large piece of ice. A mot quickly gathered and cries of 'lynch him' were heard. Lewis was rescued by detectives and sent to a hospital.
